It sounds simple enough. Medical waste must be handled with care, and costs must be contained. But it's not always simple in practice.

Waste Management now offers medical waste pick-up and treatment services that are ideal for nursing homes and medical groups. As North America's leading environmental services company, we deliver safety and cost savings, along with the safeguards you need to protect your patients, the environment – and your reputation.

With Waste Management as your service provider, you'll have the convenience of choosing your own pick-up schedule. Predictable billing. No hidden fees. OSHA training in bloodborne pathogens. And other training tools to teach your staff how to handle and sort waste safely and in compliance with regulations.
